Paradise Construction is completing a $1.092-million upgrade project for Cristo Rey New York High School, a college preparatory high school located in the East Harlem neighborhood of New York City.

Established in 2004, Cristo Rey New York is part of the Cristo Rey Network of high schools, which seeks to provide a quality education for economically disadvantaged high school students of all faiths through its core curriculum, dual language instruction and corporate work-study program. Students gain internships with many of New York City's corporate office to earn their education.

Paradise Construction is responsible for the demolition, excavation and masonry phases of the school's renovation, including ADA ramp, carpentry, landscaping, chain-link fencing and sidewalk bridge.
